Positive Coaching Alliance

- 3 Questions Parents Can Ask For A Better Car-Ride Home Conversation
- Michael Connell is a former professional golfer who played on the PGA Tour (@PGATOUR). Connell attended Mississippi State University and now resides in Dallas, Texas. According to Connell, if a child has played poorly, the parent has the perfect opportunity to fill a kid's emotional tank, rather than continue to drain it during the car-ride home. Connell suggests that if you say anything related to the game at all, you might think about asking the following three questions:

  - 1) What did you learn today?
    2) What can we improve on next time?
    3) Did you have fun?
