Welcome To The Games!

The most unfortunate aspect of state high school tournaments is not that someone must lose, but that someone else is made "Number One" at the end of the process.

You see, it's the "Number One" syndrome that most threatens interscholastic athletics in America. It causes people to worry about and value the wrong things. They worry about the eligibility of athletes more than the education of students, and about scholarships to college more than scholarship in high school. They value high school programs more than junior high programs and varsity programs more than junior varsity programs. They value specialization over participation, winning over trying, individual honors over teamwork and titles and trophies over teaching.

We are very pleased to welcome you to this tournament; and as we do, we want to remind you that today's events are only the tip of the iceberg. The heart and soul of interscholastic athletics is in the practices and regular season contests of junior high/middle schools and freshman and junior varsity programs of our high schools. The coaches, athletes and supporting administrators and parents are every bit the champions we create today.
